@EMPODERA_org
EmpoderaLIVE is an international symposium about social innovation that has got the participation of personalities like Jack Dorsey (co-founder of Twitter) or David Kobia (co-founder of Ushahidi). EmpoderaLIVE gives the opportunity to make offline the previous online work, puts faces and bodies in the names of the people in the world of e-inclusion and citizen empowerment participating, writing, commenting, posting, contributing... to Empodera through the year. Is an event where networking is promoted in different activities, where spaces for sharing our initiatives in person with other people are key for future projects and initiatives to develop. This network of people from all over the world means that we do not feel like we are alone in front of all the challenges we face, means avant-garde and not to re-invent the wheel over and over again, means collaboration, means social innovation.

EMPODERA LIVE 20

This year the event was focused on how technology can help citizens for them to contribute in the consecution of the Sustainable Development Goals: Civic Technology: The Social Innovation Ecosystem. All the topics that were discussed this year addressed this idea in a transversal way. In 2016 the event took place on September 20th and 21st in the Echegaray Theater, Málaga, Spain.

EmpoderaLIVE aims to promote, inspire and adapt the social use of new technologies in favour of social innovation and citizen empowerment through the vision and projects of experts and organizations worldwide.

Goals of EmpoderaLIVE 2016

Main Goal

The main goal of EmpoderaLIVE is to encourage, foster and adapt the use of new technologies for generating social innovation and citizen empowerment.

Specific goals

1. Bringing together around 200 experts and professionals in different areas, who are working on creative and innovative projects to achieve the Sustainable Development Goals through new technologies.

2. Creating a publication prior to the event to collect the conclusions of the discussions and reflections regarding the preliminary stage of work on social use of technology to achieve those objectives.

3. To generate a social networking among the 200 attendees (which allows the creation of social projects).

4. To create, share and promote all kinds of plans, programs, projects and activities that are intended to promote citizen empowerment, to bridge the digital divide and to promote the knowledge society through multi-stakeholder participation and socio-technological innovation.

5. To create a social networking on the event which would give continuity to the work done before and during the event.

6. To be an international symposium seen as an international and multisectoral reference on social innovation for citizen empowerment.
Conociendo EmpoderaLIVE 2016

Since its first edition in 2006 (when it was called eSTAS, Symposium on Technologies for Social Action and Citizen Empowerment) EmpoderaLIVE has changed considerably and became an unique / different / innovative event where for 2 days government professionals, companies and NGO staff involved in innovation for social action and citizen empowerment can meet and discuss around this topic.

This year had a special significance, since we are celebrating the tenth edition of this event, "10 years leading social innovation", and it continues with the philosophy that in the previous edition led us to adopt the name of EmpoderaLIVE to give continuity to the work, publications, and videos that have been made. After the chosen theme last year: "Innovative network: social use of technology to change the world", this year we wanted to focus on the door that new technologies open to the citizenry so that it has an active role in achieving Sustainable Development Goals.

Characterized by an innovative format that aims to encourage interactivity, participation, reflection, sharing of best practices and project generation, EmpoderaLIVE was structured around two main topics:

1) Preliminary work: Creation of a network of experts about the "Innovation for the citizen empowerment", definition of the topics to be discussed during the event, collection of information related to these defined topics, creation of a dynamic and inclusive dialogue between the experts involved, exchange of good practices and innovative processes, publication of a work on the topic of e-STAS with the outcome of all this work.

The virtual workspace (empodera.org) is dedicated to reflexion about social use of technology to improve the world, generate technological and social innovation and citizen empowerment.

www.EmpoderaLIVE.org  www.empodera.org
Activities: Press conference with participants, welcome cocktail, frame and closing conferences, round tables, communications, networking, live broadcast of the event in webstreaming and twitter.

Empodera project was awarded

The international symposium EmpoderaLive was one of the winning projects at the World Summit on the Information Society 2016 celebrated in Geneva. The cibervolunteers Jeniffer Diaz and Ana Viñals went to collect the award on behalf of all cibers that have made this possible. EmpoderaLive has been awarded in the category “Ethical dimensions of the information society”. This recognition indicates that the work of Cibervoluntarios during these 15 years remains on track in empowering citizens and the struggle for human rights.

The exchange of experiences is, today more than ever, a key element and guarantee of the richness of gathering in one space personalities and pioneering initiatives which are making a social use of technology with the goal of generating social innovation and citizen empowerment. Because we are not alone with the challenges we face, we are connected, collaborating network.

About Cibervoluntarios Foundation

Fundación Cibervoluntarios (Cybervolunteers Foundation) is an atypical non-profit organization made up of social entrepreneurs whose vision is to use new technologies as a means for social innovation and citizen empowerment, alleviating this way social gaps i.e. we work to increase the rights, opportunities and capabilities of each person within their environment, through the social use of technological tools and applications within their reach.

To achieve this goal, the Foundation counts with the cybervolunteers. Curious, proactive persons willing to learn, with a passion for sharing and enthusiasm about ICTs, who offer part of their time and knowledge to teach other people the possibilities of the use of technology tools and applications to improve their lives in a simple and useful way. They do it through both online and onsite courses, lectures, workshops, events... etc.

They direct their action to groups of people that may be excluded from information society based on gender, age, professional and social environment, lack of time, knowledge, skills, motivation and/or material or economic resources... and they manage to adapt the use of technological applications to alleviate these social gaps at working, participation or health levels, among others. ... A challenge, 15 years of work that without going any further than last year received from the hands of the Prince and Princess of Asturias a recognition for "the creation of new forms of participation and social innovation in support of groups at risk of exclusion", and the economic and social recognition of Google.org, for being one of 50 entities that are changing the world, the first and currently the only organization recognized with such merit in Spain.
